EANM CONGRESS CHAIR 2023-2025

Dear Colleagues,

I am very pleased to invite you to the 37th Annual Congress of the European Association of Nuclear Medicine. The EANM'24 will be held in Hamburg, on October 19–23, 2024.

Over the past years, we have seen the EANM's Annual Congress becoming larger, more impactful, and more successful, accompanying and shaping the fantastic growth of our diverse, exciting, and ever-growing specialty.

This year, once again, we will be able to exchange and discuss the latest theranostic advances, the most impactful clinical evidence, the most recently developed radiopharmaceuticals, and the most novel imaging and detection technologies. This is only possible because you send your most exciting works, your most original ideas, and your most accomplished results to the congress team, and I thank you once again for it.

This year, we will highlight with renewed emphasis our partnerships with clinical societies, with whom we work hand in hand to ensure that all patients can benefit from a timely diagnosis and an effective treatment.

We focus specifically on facilitating interactions and exchanges across disciplines, competences, and generations. Indeed, in my vision, one central mission of the EANM's Annual Congress is to motivate and inspire the youngest members of our community, who will be shaping the future of our field. The only everlasting element in our discipline is change, making adaption essential to guarantee our continued success. This can only be achieved with the contribution and active involvement of younger specialists and collaborators, who will bring our developments and advances forward. New communications technologies also play a pivotal role in knowledge sharing. This is why the online material will be made accessible during and after the congress, to reach the largest possible audience.

For all these reasons, I want to thank you already because I know that each and every one of you in your daily clinical, research, and teaching practice is preparing the content that will be discussed at the EANM'24. Rest assured that from our side, we are doing our best to prepare everything adequately and provide you with the most exciting platform.

I look forward to seeing you in Hamburg!

CLINICAL ONCOLOGY TRACK

Oncology is the blockbuster of our daily clinical life, and it is constantly changing. We strongly invite you to attend the Clinical Oncology Track to stay updated and to be able to provide innovative, oncological care to your patients. If you need any motivation: to improve patient care, it is of utmost importance to stay ahead of the curve and to be informed about the most important scientific developments.

CUTTING EDGE SCIENCE TRACK

This track aims to bring together all the disciplines concerned with Physics, Dosimetry, and Radiobiology and to provide attendees with the most cutting-edge innovations in these fields.

Medical Physics is a complex specialty which covers a broad range of areas ranging from the development of new detectors/imaging equipment to image reconstruction and quantification, dosimetry, tracer kinetics, radiobiology, and radiation protection. Today's new challenges include the integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) into most of these technical areas, as well as its eventual implementation in clinical practice. One major objective is to enhance the interaction between all these disciplines, given their prominent role within the field of Nuclear Medicine by promoting a deeper interdisciplinary scientific discussion. Consequently, there will be more so-called Featured Sessions which combine invited speakers and abstract presenters.

The EANM Dosimetry, Physics, and Radiation Protection Committees will coordinate the scientific programme for the meeting jointly with the support of the Congress Chair.

We are looking forward to welcoming you at the EANM'24. Be part of it!

Dimitris Visvikis, EANM Physics Committee

Jens Kurth, EANM Radiation Protection Committee

M2M TRACK

M2M – the 11th edition of the ‘From Molecule to Man’ Track – will delve into the cutting-edge of translational developments in Imaging and Therapy.

Since 2014, the M2M sessions have been one of the main pillars of the EANM Annual Congress. The M2M Track encourages cross-disciplinary collaboration between the various scientific disciplines concerned with molecular/nuclear imaging and therapy. By providing a platform for a wide range of scientific and medical aspects, the M2M sessions have become a dynamic forum which brings together scientists (e.g., radiochemists, physicists, and biologists), industry representatives, and clinicians – all contributing to the evolution of translational science.

The M2M Track features a curated selection of speaker sessions and paper presentations dedicated to connecting fundamental research with unmet medical needs. The EANM Committees for Translational Molecular Imaging & Therapy and the EANM Radiopharmaceutical Sciences Committee jointly coordinate the scientific programme of the M2M Track, while the EANM Executive Office handles organisational matters.

We hope that you will enjoy the sessions of the M2M Track 2024!

WORDS OF WELCOME

BY THE CHAIR OF THE TECHNOLOGISTS COMMITTEE

AGATA PIETRZAK

CHAIR, EANM TECHNOLOGISTS COMMITTEE

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

On behalf of the EANM Technologists Committee, it is an honour and a great pleasure to invite you to the EANM'24 in Hamburg, which will mark the 37th edition of the EANM's Annual Congress.

Last year's congress was an incredibly successful and hugely attended international event which we recall with warmth and professional satisfaction. This year, during the EANM'24, we hope to deliver another set of memorable moments and to exchange once again on high-level clinical and scientific topics. As the Chair of the Technologists Committee, I would like to thank you for your kind acknowledgement of our efforts as well as your precious words of encouragement with respect to the further improvement of the Technologists' Track. We greatly appreciate your vital input at every step of the Technologists Committee's development process.

Every year, the Technologists Committee focus on constructing a full multidimensional programme dedicated to Nuclear Medicine Technologists – the Technologists' Track. This initiative brings together interdisciplinary professionals, covers several aspects of the field's developments, and ultimately consists of presenting the most relevant content in accordance with the most recent scientific reports.

Several topics will be discussed over this year's Technologists' Track. These, among many others, include whole-body multimodality imaging principles, PET-CT in oncologic diseases' staging applications, radio-guided surgery, brain PET studies, as well as recent advancements regarding artificial intelligence and radiomics. One of the most relevant aspects of healthcare will also be discussed: patient advocacy. Furthermore, an opening session dedicated to the launch of our yearly publication, the Technologists' Guide, is being prepared. Finally, we hope that three practical mini courses will enable you to develop new skills and acquire additional and valuable professional experience. Topics like the use of generators, quality management system, or lean management are considered.

It is our leading objective to acknowledge the relevance of your work and to express our deepest gratitude for your efforts during the e-poster and oral presentations. As in recent years, we expect these sessions to be of very high quality and to serve as a platform to promote and share knowledge. As an additional motivating factor, an award will be given to the best presenters and e-posters.

You can always catch up with the Technologists Committee's members during the Congress to discuss your concerns, ideas, and needs. We are always happy to listen to the people we actually work for and with – you.

With my best regards,

Agata Pietrzak
Chair, EANM Technologists Committee

TECHNOLOGISTS' TRACK
